THE AMERICAN DICTIONARY ENCYCLOPAEDIA!

HAS NO COMPETITOR!

125,000
35,000

MORE WORDS

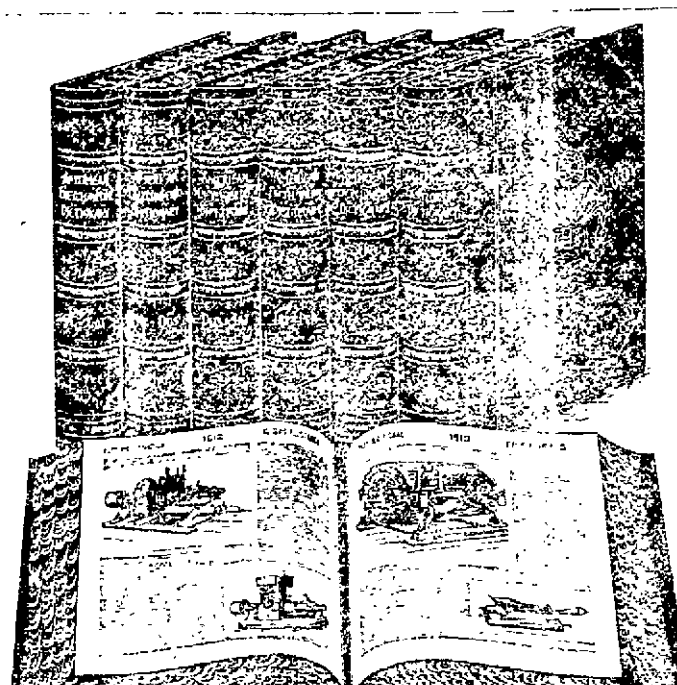

Than Worcester,
Than The International,
Than the Century,

And 25,000 more Encyclopaedia subjects than the Encyclopaedia Britannica,
Containing Also a Glossary of More Than 70,000 Words.

I have compared the AMERICAN ENCYCLOPAEDIA DICTIONARY with three other dictionaries and have found it to surpass all the others in many respects. As a dictionary, a special glossary and an encyclopaedia combined, it has no equal. I have added it to my own library. I recommend it to all students.

A Kenton Liveryman Finds His Stolen Property in This County.

On Thanksgiving Day J. B. McCormick, a Kenton man, had a horse and buggy stolen from his barn by William McGuff. The thief was supposed to have come into Marion county with the stolen property and search was made in this direction, with the result that the property has all been regained by the owner.

On Saturday it was reported to McCormick at Kenton that a horse and buggy had been traded off at Agosta, Monday Marshal Griffith, of Kenton, and another officer of that place, accompanied by McCormick, drove to LaRue. Learning nothing there they proceeded to Agosta and there they found where the horse and buggy were. The horse was in possession of an Agosta butcher who had given a pony and $5 in cash for the Kenton animal, which was at once turned over to McCormick. The buggy was found at Baryville, where McGuff had sold it to a farmer for $17. The farmer did not like the idea of giving up the vehicle, but was finally induced to do so without trouble. Coming to this city the harness belonging to McCormick were found in the Watkins stable, where was also found an "old skate" for which McGuff had exchanged the pony secured at Agosta.

Wm. McGuff, the thief, is the man who was plotted to the west end of the city Friday night, November 23, by a member of the local Bowery gang, who is known, where a fruitless attempt was made to hold up the horse thief. It will be recalled that McGuff—his name was at the time given as McGuffey—knocked his assailant down after he was himself sandbagged.

The officers believe that they will yet be able to capture McGuff.

HE WAS MISQUOTED.

The Star Got a Wrong Version of P. W. Huntington's Lecture.

In some manner, inexplicable now, the Star's report of the lecture of Mr. P. W. Huntington misquoted that gentleman. This, of course, was wholly unintentional, and we take pleasure in giving space to a due correction. The following letters will fully explain:

Pastor Thomas' Note.

Marion, O., Dec. 10, 1895.
Editor MARION DAILY STAR,
DEAR SIR:—In justice to the lecture and to the cause of Christian missions, I trust you will kindly publish the following letter from Mr. Huntington, which is self-explanatory.

Yours very truly,

W. E. THOMAS.

Mr. Huntington's Letter.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9, 1895.
My Dear Sir:—I have yours of 8th inst. and thank you for the clipping from the daily Star enclosed therewith. The reporter of the Star evidently misapprehended me entirely. I did not say, and I never intended to say that which he has attributed to me.

In the closing part of my address I said that "the progress of the missionary work is increasing in an extraordinary ratio—that the day when all of India will be under the influence of the Christian religion is not so far off as some of us may think." And, further on, I urged the necessity of teaching the Bengalee "how to work as well as to believe," the reference being to the indolent habits of mind and body fastened on the inhabitants of the lower Ganges country by "the usages of many centuries and by climatic influences." That when these results had been accomplished there would be "less need of missionaries in India" than at present. I further urged that "work must follow close in the path of an earnest, abiding faith," which, I am sure, is orthodox.

I did not say, in reference to the missionaries, that "the church has supported them long; they have had a good start; they should now become self-supporting and keep up their own missions." Such a sentiment is exactly the opposite of what I believe, which is, in brief, that the mission work should be pushed and that the great advantages—spiritual, numerical and financial—gained since 1813 should not be allowed to lapse for want of earnest support from Europe and America.

Very truly yours,

P. W. HUNTINGTON.

LaRue Masonic Election.

LaRue Lodge, No. 463 F and A M, elected the following officers at the stated meeting on December 8:

IMPORTANT MEETING

Held Monday by Marion Circle, No. 25, Ladies of the G. A. R.

Marion Circle, No. 25, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, met at its hall in the Masonic block, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and held an interesting meeting.

The circle voted to send a large box of jellies and other delicacies to the soldiers' home at Sandusky for Christmas and to accompany the present with a nice lot of reading matter.

The comfort drawing which has been delayed for some time will be held at the hall next Thursday at 2 o'clock and at the same time another comfort and quilt will be disposed of, the proceeds to be applied to the soldiers' relief fund.

On the 18th inst. the state inspector will be here to inspect the circle and as large attendance as is possible is hoped for at that time.

SICK AND CONVALESCENT.

Mrs. D. J. Felty is reported quite sick.

A son of S. Hurley, of north State street, is ill.

Johnny Lawrence, of Silver street, is on the sick list.

H. R. Bowman, near the lime kiln, has two children ill.

A child of Mrs. Ella Greenbough, of north Prospect street, is very sick.

Mrs. E. Geiger, of north Prospect street, fell and broke her left arm Sunday.

Mrs. James McDowdow is dangerously ill at the home of Jacob Findling, on Girard street.

Mrs. T. J. McMurray's recovery is continued and is so encouraging now that Mr. McMurray looks for her return home by Christmas.

Mrs. Philip Ebert underwent an operation for the removal of a large tumor from her arm put Monday, and is feeling quite well considering the seriousness of the case. The operation was performed by Dr. Harroth, assisted by Dr. Bishop.

Coming Medical Society Meeting.

Dr. Wells this morning received a letter from Prof. Etheridge, of Chicago, stating that he would be here to attend the meeting of the North Central Ohio Medical society, which meets on Friday.

Dr. Dickey, of Tiffin, and Dr. Schaller, of Cincinnati, will also be present and an extensive program has been arranged.

The morning session will convene at the Y. M. C. A. building at 11 o'clock, and the afternoon at 1 o'clock, and the occasion will end up with a banquet at the New Kerr.

TWO LARGE MORTGAGES

Aggregating $12,000,000, Filed in This County Today.

Two large mortgages were filed in the recorder's office Monday night, both being given by the Columbus, Sandusky and Hocking Railroad on all its property, real, personal or mixed.

The first bears date Nov. 9, 1895, and calls for $2,000,000, to secure to the Mercantile Trust company of New York the payment of 2,000 $1,000 bonds, due in five years, and bearing 5 per cent. interest, payable semi-annually.

The second mortgage is on the same property and bears date Nov. 11, 1895. It is given to the Metropolitan Trust company, of New York City, to secure the payment of 10,000 $1,000 bonds due Jan. 1, 1910, and being entered at the rate of 2 1/2 per cent. from Jan. 1, 1895, to Jan. 1, 1898, 3 per cent. from January 1, 1898, to January 1, 1907, and 4 per cent. thereafter.

He Was a Nice Man.

A despicable trick was played on a little girl Sunday. She was standing in front of the U. S. Auction Syndicate when her umbrella slipped out of her hand and fell through the cellar grating. A man standing in front of the store told her to come around Monday when the store was open and he would get it for her, adding that he owned the store but had left his keys at home.

The little girl's father came around Monday morning and, of course, found that it was simply a job to get rid of the little girl so that the man could lift up the grating and get the shower stick. Mr. Layton, of course, knew nothing about it until Monday morning and is justly indignant.

St. Agnes Guild.

Will meet this Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock with the Misses Fisher, Prospect street. Every member of the guild is urgently requested to attend, there being most important business to be transacted.

Be Up With the Times!

MARION must follow in the wake of the larger cities. Seeing she has made such an advance in large dry goods houses, etc., it is now my plan to make an advance in the Tailoring Line, such as none but larger cities generally attempt. Being governed by my past liberal patronage from the people of Marion and vicinity, I now offer a plan by which I increase my present large trade, and offer to the people of Marion a chance to wear Tailor-made Suits, and reach the many who have thought they could only afford a Ready-made Suit.

First-class, All-wool Suits for $15.00.
Also First-class, All-wool, Black Clay Worsted for Only $18.

These Suits Made to Order—that is, TO YOUR MEASURE and to suit the customer for only $15.00, $16.00, $18.00.

There is no need of your wearing Ready-made, for such prices bring the Tailor-made within the reach of all. This is being done in all of our neighboring cities and it can be done in Marion.

TROUSERS FOR $4.00 AND UPWARDS.
OVERCOATS FOR $15.00 AND UPWARDS.
CORDUROY VESTS FOR $4.50.
FANCY VESTS $5.00.

I will guarantee my work to be the best that can be put up for the price, which only first-class work and a good fit can insure. Come one, come all, and take advantage of these low prices at

WOMAN ATHLETE

FRANK LESLIE ON GRACE OF LIMB AND OF SPIRIT.

on the Wheel, in the Saddle and on the Field—The Insolence of a Question of Costume—Parade.

1895, by American Press Association.

HE park lay in all the loveliness and calm of an autumn morning, and as my carriage passed near the remote shaded bridge path to the hollow of the lake the shrubbery light with frost tinted foliage, and a light patter of hoof and fair amazon flashed across the scene, a veritable Diana of a girl, bright and eyes sparkling with wit, as she turned and glanced out, at the same time reining up the limbed chestnut steed. The man was exact. On the instant she came dashing up behind on horse, evidently well practiced, and which joined step rhythmically with the chestnut, close beside. The rider leaped out from his saddle, without turning again, tossed his head slightly, in the right direction, and just as they passed out of the shaded kiss, which was the end of this pretty flying jockey.

I thought, here is the outdoor, the "fierce athletic girl" of the age, as his ideal for the coming year best. She also conserves in and prescribes something of the gentleness of the woman of the past. And forthwith before my inner there came trooping down the whole cavalcade of highborns of the middle ages, those who with the men to the crusades, among the seas to give them gentle noble ladies harnessed in armor and mounted on goodly steeds: Philippa of England, firing her arrows to victory at Neville's Cross; Montfort, who had, as Froissart says, "the courage of a man and the grace of a lion," and whose cheer amid the din of battle at the death of Henry "lighted the flame of chivalry in every noble's whole platoons of the 'bel-car-gil' of the old romances, married by Britomart and Clarinda and the sublime culmination of their inspired Jeanne d'Arc, as she is in French's spirited equestrian.

My fine vision was abruptly broken upon by the passing of a troop of flesh and blood maidens of the takable end of the century type, clad, alas, on bicycles. This, then, it has come to. For every one on a horseback nowadays you have a hundred on bicycle. Such a commonplace fact, and the fact that and away favorite with temporary athletic sisterhood as side of their emancipation and in the field of outdoor recreation theoretical depreciation of it is moment may be considered as none. Still the superiority of this star form of exercise as a development of physical harmony and grace, in particular, is by no means strated as yet. As to the costume to meet its requirements, opinion is as much divided as the skirts, frightful gowns are seen on Madison and may well account for to alarming prevalence of rump in the park. In Paris the "velocette" as they are called, fly to the extreme and get themselves up in athletic guises that are strongly to the taste of the café concert stage. My Colonel Cody of Wild West fame spoke out for a good many when he said to a newspaper man who was interviewing him the threatened suppression of the other day, "If you mean those or arrangements, I think a woman ears such things ought to be shot."

ever, costume is a secondary condition, once the principle establishes. I understand that no less a person than Miss Frances Willard, the U. S. gave the weight of her example of the bicycle some time judging from the number of maniacs to be seen striding out on roads of saloons, roadhouses and generally, it may be doubted if it of exercise is conducive to the temperance of which this exercise is so distinguished an attribute if she could only introduce a dress which would be comfortable and suitable, and at the same time, her score would be to the good side of progress and humanity.

Get strong, then, but without acquiring the measure of strength. Be independent, but not aggressive. Cultivate grace of limb and body, and at the same time do not forget that inner grace is the spirit which is supposed to come natural to you without any training at all.

Then, again, the open air, with its bracing breeze, and then you are made free to as never yet, for the sun is in the blood, and a pulse beats to the dish of the world, the pulse of the mountain pine, the wild call against wind and weather.

Let me read, then, as I began, with a picture of one of outdoor womanhood's best moments, a picture penned in this instance by the master hand of Theophile Gautier:

"We were riding together—I on my good Ferragus, she on her slim white filly, that moved as if with wings to its feet. The path was arched with immemorial elms, and the declining sunlight fell warm and golden through the interlacing foliage. Now and then a bird flitted across the vista, singing as it flew. A village church bell sounded the Angelus, its note softened by the distance to infinite sweetness. Our horses walked in step, side by side, in unbroken silence. I spoke no word, nor did she. Yet never had our thoughts been so completely in accord."

"I leaned toward her and passed my arm about her waist. She responded by the same movement, and her head rested upon my shoulder. So our lips met. Oh, chaste, delicious kiss! Her eyes were closed, and I, too, felt myself faint from the rapture of that divine instant. Like this, methinks, the angels kiss in heaven, and paradise is not all in the skies."

As an example of what a bright, modest, graceful and thoroughly womanly woman can do in this line, when intelligently trained and normally clothed, my recollection calls up the lissom figure of Annie Oakley, the fair haired Californian. In her public exhibitions she used to, and does still, believe, run like an antelope across the spacious arena, with head thrown back and chestnut streaming in the wind, after displaying a prowess at riding and shooting which rather surprised that of the men in the aggregation, including the redoubtable "Buffalo Bill" himself.

But it is not necessary to bring up a phenomenon or to point to individual instances of professional strong women, circus riders and dancseuses of the stage to make the point that the alleged physical inferiority of woman is a traditional assumption rather than a scientific fact, and that in the field of outdoor sports, which at present they are so boldly invading, they have really as much right as men. In a recently published book entitled "Man and Woman" Mr. Havelock Ellis makes a daring survey of this hitherto little explored domain of science, and points out that nature has really done her best to make women healthy and glad, and has on the whole been content to let men run somewhat wild. Men have taken their revenge on nature and her protegee. While women have been largely absorbed in that sphere of occupation which is nature's main concern, men have reclaimed the earth, sharpening their aptitudes and energies in perpetual conflict. It has thus come about that the subjugation of nature by man has often practically involved the subjugation, physical and mental, of women by men.

Against this state of subjugation it cannot be doubted the tendency of womanhood in the present age is to revolt or at least to aspire for independence; hence the significance of the new movement in physical culture, no less than of the question of woman's suffrage, as a sign of the times. Like all revolutions this one has its fanatics, its imprudent, its extreme radicals, its grotesque fanatics, its extreme lefts, so to speak. It must have been one of these latter who in the course of a gossip conversation about a favorite living American poet said he struck her as being decidedly effeminate. The remark was repeated to the poet, who retorted, "So I am, compared with her!"

The serious question is, really, what effect is all this new craze of outdoor activity and physical training going to have upon woman's character, her attitude toward the world in general and particularly toward that half of the world which hitherto it has been her natural instinct and aim, or at least her main occupation, to please. And how about their attitude toward her? So far as my observation goes, the average man seems to regard the amazons with uneasiness, with a kind of politely disguised impatience, with a trifle of suspicion or awe. Perhaps this comes from a selfish jealousy, or a vague sense of humiliation on his part, but anyway there is an impression, and is it the one which a woman sincerely desires to make upon her erstwhile friend and natural protector? Those thousands and one little attentions of his may have been mere pretty conventionalities, and quite superfluous, yet how grateful! And who would not miss them if withheld? You, Diana, with your blooming vigor and manly stride, having just swung on the front platform of a car and walked somewhat defiantly down the aisle, don't you expect to see two or three men pop up instantly to offer you a seat? In fact, you are so accustomed to it that you perhaps forget even to say "Thank" for such a commonplace matter of course. But suppose instead the male creature in the car remain obstinately and comfortably seated, cross legged, reading their newspapers, or perhaps staring curiously at those enviable taller made clothes of yours, which are a glaring travesty upon their own graceful though appropriate attire? You wouldn't care? Ah, Diana, if you had arrived at that stage where you really didn't care how you looked to the man and woman in public then would your case be hopeless indeed, and all my words in vain. But you do care, and a good deal.

Get strong, then, but without acquiring the measure of strength. Be independent, but not aggressive. Cultivate grace of limb and body, and at the same time do not forget that inner grace is the spirit which is supposed to come natural to you without any training at all.

Then, again, the open air, with its bracing breeze, and then you are made free to as never yet, for the sun is in the blood, and a pulse beats to the dish of the world, the pulse of the mountain pine, the wild call against wind and weather.

Let me read, then, as I began, with a picture of one of outdoor womanhood's best moments, a picture penned in this instance by the master hand of Theophile Gautier:

VILLAGE SCHOOLHOUSE.

Convenience, Ventilation and Light the Features—Cost $5,000 to Build. (Copyright, 1895, by George Palliser.)

This is a design of a new two room village school, well adapted to the needs of a small place where only two rooms are required. The building is of brick, with a very neat and artistic impression, fully expressing its uses and purposes, and would be an ornament to any village requiring a house of this size. The school rooms are each 24 by 32 feet in size, with 13 foot ceilings, this size being large enough for 65 scholars of the smaller grades and 50 of the higher grades, with single desks. The rooms are well lighted and are especially adapted to the requirements.

A well built schoolhouse is an essential equipment of any intelligent community, and one to that place that falls in this respect. The school should be the center of attraction for the young, and so nice that the children would rather go there and study than stay away. All this is possible, and with proper buildings, duly equipped, and pleasant teachers to make learning pleasant, it is not too far possible, and it can be made a reality.

The first impressions of good are gained in the schoolhouse, and with a poor school building, poor arrangements, poor teachers, the scholar is apt to ever after look at life as he has then found it. With the best in that line the opposite is the case, and the impressions then gained are apt to last through life, and when a man is grown up and old he will always look back to them as sunny spots to lighten and cheer his whole life.

This schoolhouse, as illustrated, is one of the best models for a building of this kind, giving the best arrangements for small cost and expense. The front porch is roomy and affords access to each basement playground, the boys' playground being on one side and the girls' on the other. The playgrounds in the basement are the same size as rooms on the first floor. The hall and cloak rooms are connected with each classroom separately, so that the children know exactly where to find their clothes when the session is over. These cloakrooms are placed in the hall and are practically screened about 7 feet high, open at the top as well as with ventilation at the bottom, and the hall being ventilated and warmed thoroughly the clothing is aired and dried while the school is in session.

The heating and ventilation are by means of a large hot air furnace, placed in the center of the building, under the hall, changing the air in the classrooms four times an hour, so that the windows can be tightly closed and perfect ventilation and plenty of fresh air assured at all times. The principal's room is placed a short flight up from the first floor over the front porch. His room is 10 feet by 14 feet in size. The size of this building is 66 feet front, 35 feet deep, with a slate roof, built thoroughly substantial, floors finished and decorated, vaulted ceilings and halls, painted blackboards in the classrooms, handsome finished walls.

Such a building ought to be erected for $5,000. The furnishings and cost of desks average per pupil when rock bottom is reached about $2. It will cost $15 each room for teachers' desks and chairs, $2 a window for suitable window shades; the furniture for the principal's room, $50. These items would enable any one to figure out requirements outside of the building. The arrangement of this plan is such that at any future time two more rooms can be built on the rear, making a four room school, as all communities will grow and it is only a question of time when more room is needed.

In every case of this nature plenty of ground should be had while it is cheap. Then there is always room to enlarge school facilities.

Full working plans and specifications furnished for 2 per cent on cost, named by applying to George Palliser, 32 Park place, New York.

Stands the Test of Time. It requires much experience to distinguish good work from bad, although it is a faculty many clever people think they possess, but how they acquire it they do not know. Art in all things is today upstart, and well meaning people are oftentimes sadly mistaken in their ideas of what constitutes this commodity. Some think it is because of novelty or because it is the latest style or fad, or because it is uncommunal, but that which stands the test of time is always a safe thing to stand by in architecture, as in all other matters, and hence the colonial exemplifies the best ideas of fitness in all the manner of styles run through since its early inception, and by its study fully exemplifies and fastens upon the thought and enables a trained mind to fully realize and discriminate between the good and bad and attain the best results. It is the age of reason as applied to architecture, the greatest degree of perfection attained, and yet the simplest and most unassuming style of all; but it is still the hardest to work and handle and needs a master mind and a careful attention to avoid all technical errors or points of detail likely to trip all the while, and only the trained architect can fully understand or realize its full possibilities.—George Palliser.

Sanitary Aid Society. Splendid work has also been done by Europe and America by sanitary aid societies. These are private or voluntary bodies of men and women organized for the purpose of assisting the health officer in the enforcement of sanitary laws. They have done much toward molding public opinion in favor of wise legislation and educating the poor in hygiene matters by visiting homes, distributing literature and calling attention to improper sanitation. They have also given medical aid, and to health authorities when requested, and have carried into courts.

Hardening Steel. In hardening, bright steel should not be exposed to a fire or flame. It may with advantage be placed in a covered box containing bonfire or animal charcoal in some other form, or another plan is to smear soap all over the article to be hardened. Water or oil is the medium generally selected for plunging the article in to cool it. Petroleum is recommended if extra hardness is desired. Either mercury or salt water will give great hardness, but the steel is rendered brittle. Oil is the best medium for hardening steel if toughness is required.—Jewellers' Circular.

When most needed it is not unusual for your family physician to be away from home. Such was the experience of Mr. J. Y. Schenck, editor of the Gazette, Lud. Ter. Banner, when his little girl, two years of age, was threatened with a severe attack of croup. He says: "My wife insisted that I go for the doctor, but as our family physician was out of town I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved her immediately. I will not be without it in the future." 25 and 70 cent bottles for sale by L. H. Blocken, Druggist.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by druggists, 75¢.

The young man who suffers from nervous debility, impaired memory, low spirits, irritability, loss of temper, and the thousand and one arrangements of mind and body that result from unnatural, pernicious habits, is thereby incapacitated to thoroughly enjoy life. He feels tired, listless, and despondent, and does not feel like him as he should.

To reach, reclaim and restore such unfortunate to health and happiness is the aim of the publishers of a book of 156 pages, written in plain but choice language, on the nature, symptoms and curability, by home treatment, of such diseases. This book will be sent absolutely free to any one who sends for it with ten cents in stamps for postage. Address: World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

For more than a quarter of a century physicians connected with this widely celebrated institution have made the treatment of the diseases above hinted at their specialty. Thousands have consulted them by letter and received advice and medicines which have resulted in permanent cures.

Sufferers from premature old age, or loss of power, will find much of interest in the book above mentioned.

What Is Japan to Do? The danger for Japan is serious and will, we doubt not, lead to modifications of policy which will be watched everywhere in Europe with the keen curiosity of self interest. It is almost certain that Russia intends to succeed in her policy, and it follows of course that she must object to Japan's supremacy in Korea. In other words, Russia will try to deprive Japan of all the gains in the recent war, except the islands and the indemnity. What then will be the Japanese policy?

Such, as usual, three courses open to her—first, to retire, expend her indemnity on her fleet, and bide her time; second, to fight Russia now before she is ready, and if possible, take eastern Siberia from her; or, third, to change the route of her ambition and endeavor to acquire the vast island dominions which stretch below her to the southward as far as Australia, and which are all, except Borneo, at present weekly held by powers unequal to a contest with her at sea.—London Spectator.

A Break in the Chain.

At a certain school not very far from Halifax it used to be the daily custom for the scholars to repeat the Apostles' Creed, one beginning, "I believe in God, the Father Almighty," the next going on, "Maker of heaven and earth," and so on, turn and turn about, until the creed was concluded. It was also usual for the scholars to occupy the same place day after day, so that a boy always repeated exactly the same bit of creed. This arrangement led to a rather amusing scene one day, when one of the pupils happened to be absent. The creed was said as usual until they came to the passage, "I believe in the Holy Ghost," when the boy whose turn it was to go on hesitated for a minute and then said, "Please, sir, him 'at believes in the Holy Ghost isn't here today."—London Telegraph.

What a Cautious Mother Says. "I have raised a family of six children and have tried all the cures for colic from paregoric to catnip tea, and never found anything so valuable as Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. It expels wind from the stomach at once and gives such quiet and refreshing sleep. I would not be without Dr. Hand's Colic Cure or Dr. Hand's Teething Lotion for four times the cost. Mothers, give them a trial."—Mrs. H. A. Brown, 287 South Cherry St., Canton, O.

In speaking of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Major Picton says: "I have used it myself and in my family for several years, and take pleasure in saying that I consider it an infallible cure for diarrhoea and dysentery. I have recommended it and have frequently administered it to my guests in the hotel, and in every case it has proven itself worthy of unqualified endorsement. For sale by L. H. Flocken, Druggist."

Moran's Migratory Heart.

Frederick Moran is an inmate of the County infirmary, and since he has been there his heart has been shifting from one side to the other, and has finally wound up on the right side of his body, where it seems to have located a chain with intent to remain permanently.

Moran lived in Chicago when this peculiar action of the heart began. It was a restless, shifting organ, moving from side to side in a manner most perplexing and confusing to physicians.

Mr. Moran found himself having considerable trouble, but he did not imagine that his heart was wandering around in this remarkable fashion. When he came to this coast, he settled in Alameda. Here his heart began wandering from side to side, and this so disturbed Mr. Moran's internal arrangements that he became quite sick. He was sent to the County infirmary for treatment, and when he got there, Resident Physician Clark made a thorough examination of his physical condition. Dr. Clark noted that his heart seemed to be a little out of plumb, and he watched the case closely.

While Mr. Moran remained in the County infirmary his heart kept on its travels and finally located itself permanently upon the right side. During this time Moran suffered some, but Dr. Clark's treatment prevented any serious results. Moran became accustomed to the new order of things and he is now to be discharged from the hospital and will go back to work.

It is unusual that the heart should shift from one side to the other without causing death. Dr. Clark says that he has only heard of three similar cases, and that the shifting of the heart in Moran's case has been complete.—San Francisco Examiner.

An Anecdote of Grady.

Many are the anecdotes of the late Henry W. Grady, and all of them are interesting. Shortly before his death he extended an invitation to a newspaper man whom he had never seen to call at his office.

When the journalist entered, Mr. Grady was seated before a window in his private office writing.

"Sit down," he said, and then wrote on for half an hour in silence.

His visitor became restless. He seized his hat and said, "Good morning!"

"Sit down," said Grady. "I'll talk with you in a minute."

The man resumed his seat, but just at that moment another visitor was announced and admitted.

Seeing that Grady was not alone, he said:

"I'll call again when you are more at leisure."

"Stay," said Grady; "this man over here," pointing to the journalist, "doesn't amount to anything. Just talk away!"

Then the journalist grew hot in the collar, and rising said:

"If I don't amount to anything, Mr. Grady, why did you desire this meeting?"

"My dear fellow," replied Mr. Grady in his most winning way, "you're too sensitive. Just sit down again. I am perfectly delighted to see you!"

And the result of the interview was a remunerative contract to contribute a number of articles to The Constitution.

SHE KICKED.

Mollie, One of the Fire Department Horses, Wounds Driver Breese.

Sam Breese, driver of the hose cart team, was injured this forenoon by being kicked by one of the horses. He was in the stall with the old veteran, Mollie, when she kicked him with one foot, the sharply-shod hoof striking him about midway between the knees and thigh. While not serious the hurt was sufficiently painful to induce Breese to take a lay-off.

The giddy old Mollie went out of her way to kick her driver, and was evidently not in an amiable mood. Breese was cleaning her and had fastened the mare's head rather high, and before he knew of her intentions she turned in the stall in order to reach him.

OPENING NEW TERRITORY.

Surveys Being Made for New Streets and Extensions.

Harry Jones, assistant to Engineer Bowen, is now engaged in making the surveys that will open a vast amount of territory in the southeastern part of the city, and will add considerable real estate to the market ready for next spring's boom.

Haue avenue, Indiana street, the extension of Grand avenue from Church street to Mt. Vernon avenue, as well as the extension of Jefferson street across the railroads are being surveyed.

This work is done by the order of the city council, made upon the recent application of the property owners interested.

DWELLING HOUSE BURNED.

The Vacant House on the Levi Jones Place Burned Down.

The frame dwelling house on the Levi Jones farm, situated seven miles south of Marion on the Waldo pike, burned down last night, from incendiary origin, it is believed. The house was unoccupied, and there was no insurance. The loss is probably $800, though the house may have originally cost nearly twice as much.

The loss falls upon the Jones estate, of which Wesley Myers is administrator.

"Hopes Crushed To Earth, Etc." [Editorial Times.]

The Marion Star predicts an oil boom for that locality. Vain and delusive hope. The Lakue wells drilled four years ago represent all the oil in that country, and they represent the percolating effort of the oil for a period of four years to find egress from the cavities in the earth. The process of percolation was so slow that eternity will scarcely develop a productive oil field in that locality.

ABOUT FILLERS.

Asphalt, Murphy Grout and Coal Tar Used Side by Side.

Superintendent Geo. Turner, of the Electric Street Railway company, is authority for the statement that tar is a pretty good street paving filler. When a lot of brick was removed to put in new ties at the west end of the transfer near the public square it was necessary to take up bricks put down with three different fillers.

The filler north of the tracks was asphalt, between the tracks Murphy grout and south of the tracks common coal tar. With very little trouble the bricks put down with asphalt were removed and frequently it was found that the asphalt didn't penetrate the crevice between the bricks at all.

After one row of bricks, filled with Murphy grout, had been removed, you could kick the bricks loose but when it came to removing the bricks put in with tar the heavy work was struck.

It required two men at a time and often in removing one brick the entire pavement would raise with it. When the bricks were removed it was found that the hot tar had fully filled the crevices between the bricks and in some cases run under them on top of the sand.

In all cases they stuck fast and it was necessary to use a pick and a crowbar to loosen one brick from the pavement.

POLICE COURT NEWS.

The usual number of tramps found lodging at the Morpheus palace for hobos Monday night.

Marshal Blain finds it hard to shake off the grip and he improves very slowly. Officer Munsell does the marshal's duties in the forenoon and Officer Clapsaddle looks after them in the afternoon.

A stone-cutter, half-crazed, went to the city prison Sunday night and requested to be locked up. He was bordering upon an attack of the jim jams. Monday morning he was better and tried to go to work. Again in the evening he felt another attack approaching and sought the protection of a cell. He had improved again this morning and was again released.

Mrs. Jesse Cressap was before the mayor Monday evening with a complaint. She rents a room in the Booth building, on north Main street, for which she pays $7 per month, with 10 cents additional for each bucket of coal furnished by the landlord. Mrs. Cressap was indisposed for a few days and left the premises. When she returned the room was locked and the most of her clothing remained inside. She was in debt to the landlord $13, and it is presumed this means was taken to secure him. The woman was advised to go to a justice of the peace for relief.

MINERALS.

Coral, both white and red, is found on the Florida coast.

Green crocidolite, or "cat's eye," is found in New Mexico.

Mica is found in North Carolina, Georgia and elsewhere.

In 1890 the United States produced one-third of the world's pig iron.

In 1890 the United States produced over one-third of the world's steel.

Green feldspar, or Amazon stone, is found near Pike's peak, in Colorado.

Bematite, a variety of iron ore, of a quality fit for jewelry, exists in several states.

In 1881 the value of the precious stones mined in this country somewhat exceeded $30,000.

Pennsylvania produced in 1891 45,236,992 long tons of anthracite coal, valued at $73,943,735.

Four-fifths of our entire silver product comes from the states of Colorado and Montana and from Utah territory.

Alabama, Michigan, Pennsylvania, New York, Minnesota and Wisconsin produce over four-fifths of the iron manufactured in this country.

In the production of steel the United States stands first, largely exceeding the output of Great Britain, and being nearly double that of Germany.

The lime produced in 1891 was estimated at 60,000,000 barrels, equal to one to each inhabitant, male and female, old and young, and was valued at $35,000,000.

The Pennsylvania anthracite mines have been worked without cessation since 1820, the output having continually increased until it reached, in 1891, the aggregate of 45,236,992 long tons.

In 1849 the gold produced by this country began with an output of $40,000,000. Since that time it has fluctuated, once, in 1853, rising to $65,000,000, and once, in 1883, sinking to $30,000,000.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A BUSINESS CHANGE

To Take Place in the Establishment of D. W. Odaffer & Co.

A radical change will take place in the very near future in the successful drug and book firm of D. W. Odaffer & Co. In fact the change will have taken place by the time this item reaches the eyes of the reader.

As has been known this firm for some time has been carrying a very heavy line of drugs and toilet articles and books and stationery. It has been decided that a change will be made in the business and consequently commencing tonight the entire line of books, school and otherwise, stationery of all kinds, school supplies, gold pens and penholders, in fact the entire line carried outside of that which is carried by a first-class, exclusive drug house, will be immediately closed out at ridiculously low figures, no matter if the goods do not bring even cost. They must go under any circumstances. Mr. Odaffer says, as it is the firm's intention to do a drug business exclusively.

RAILROAD NOTES

W. P. Kimble, roadmaster of the N. Y. P. and O., is in the city.

C. D. Ward, assistant traveling auditor of the Erie, is in the city.

The Lake Shore last year carried over 4,000,000 passengers without a single fatal accident.

The report of Auditor Dunning, of the C. S. and H., for the month of November shows an increase of $8755.40 over the earnings of the same month of 1894.

The Big Four now has in service 16,000 cars and all are to be renumbered according to their length, width and capacity, the large cars taking the higher numbers.

Columbus Journal: The passenger department of the Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo contemplates some changes in the schedule on the Toledo division of that road, to take effect about Dec. 15.

The Hocking Valley is making arrangements for a grand employee excursion from all along the line to Columbus the 18th inst. L. W. Landman is here and tells the Star that there will be a great football game at the Park rink and a ludicrous pony drill.

A meeting of rate clerks of Columbus lines interested in the military pool was held at the Chittenden to revise the military rate sheet. The roads represented were the Pennsylvania Lines, Baltimore and Ohio, Ohio Central Lines, the Big Four and the C. H. V. and T.

The cars in the freight equipment of the Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo are numbered in series, according to capacity and dimensions. All of the old cars which were of 14 and 18 tons capacity have been dropped out of the service and only those of 25 and 30 tons capacity and over used. Of the latter two series this road has 2500 and 3300, respectively.

The state board of equalization of railroad property has completed its valuation of the railroad property of the state. It finds that there are 8,073,388 miles of main track, valued at $65,032,045; 898,098 miles of second track, valued at $4,212,874; 3,134,878 miles of side track, valued at $7,011,437 or a total trackage of 12,871,065 miles, valued at $79,210,176. The railroads of Ohio have $19,947,987 of rolling stock, $4,129,261 of buildings, $1,339,725 of tools and machinery, $888,751 of money and credits, or a total taxable property of $105,821,200.

In connection with the reorganization of the Columbus, Sandusky and Hocking railroad two mortgages aggregating $12,000,000 have been recorded in Muskingum county. One of them, for $10,000,000, was issued to the Metropolitan Trust company of New York, while the other, $2,000,000, is held by the Mercantile Trust company. Smith W. Bennett has issued a deed to Geo. W. Sinks and Daniel B. Hatch, as purchasing committee, for $1,500,500. This is supposed to convey the property of the old organization in Zanesville and Muskingum county to the new ownership.

GRAND OPERA SIGHTS

A SWEEPING VIEW OF WEALTH AND FASHION IN NEW YORK.

Singers and Not Music Draw the Big Houses—The Brilliant World Picked to Tatters—Fads of the Season—In the Corridors.

(Special Correspondence.)

New York, Dec. 9.—If you want to view or sweep the wealth, beauty and fashion of New York, young and old, set forth in bravest array, take a red letter night at the opera. What is a red letter night? Well, a night when Calvé sings, or de la Rosa, or this season, Frances Sattle, who sings the roles usually filled by Eames or Melba and looks as pretty as a picture. The singers, not the music, draw the big representative houses.

A stranger who wants to see the panorama unfolded in its full gorgeousness and make correct notes has but to choose the name of a favorite star, think nothing about the music, stick a powerful magnifying glass in his pocket, acquaint himself with the plan of the house from the diagram printed on the programme, pay $1.50 for general admission, which gives him the whole house for a promenade, keep directly open for reference the page of the programme which names the occupants of the boxes, and he can please himself.

Alack, very often he is by no means pleased. He is largely disappointed. The pretty bit of physical attraction which in New York society is made do duty for a "positive beauty" takes away his breath. Max Nordau never lives in New York. He had when he wrote "Conventionalities," he would surely have stated that all huge inventors for the deception of man in polite society the "lie" which converts hard-possible women into beauties is the very worst.

What Counts For Beauty.

The stranger in New York does not know how slight a thing in the gilded frame of the smart set counts for ravishing beauty, and that eagerness in the case of fashionable women to supply an imperfection. A woman with no physical trait to stand criticism had a fairly shaped nose will be "the beautiful Mrs. So-and-so. Ever see such a nose?" It is the same with a hand, foot or a few good front teeth. An item of passable son, niece of Freddie Gebhard, is a sweet faced brunette, who has no rival stronger than her own young, vivacious, clever, brunette mother, Mrs. Fred Neilson. The daughter is a gentle, tranquil replica of the mother, who retains all her old agueric fascination and is indeed more piquant than ever this season. Mrs. Neilson has the Irish strain in her, with its exterior French grace, and the flashing eyes, the slight, erect figure, the small expressive hand which she uses so deftly, make a striking picture. As she sat in her box on the first night of the season, powdered in effective black, and garlanded literally with diamonds, every one wondered why Mrs. Neilson had not married again. "And she is so bright and clever," they said; "fifty times prettier than the daughter." Mrs. Neilson has just returned after a year's absence.

Then there is Miss Kitty Duer, with the family genius in her face aside from her fair regular features. Few women have the same union of brilliant beauty and literary talent as her cousin, Caroline Duer, of whom Mrs. Parron Stevens used to say that the gods had given her every gift of person, mind and heart, but the world had grudged her money. Miss Kitty's face has in it much of the meaning as well as beauty of her cousin's.

Young Mrs. Jack Astor, gown and jeweled like a princess, high bred, gently proud, above all things simple in manner and bearing, is one of the few talked of beauties who never disappoint. The face keeps the soft, sensitive look which most of these women lose early. The best of them grow hard and immobile. They cultivate a story air of "unsusceptibility," believing it good form.

Gratitude is brief. After a social bondage of years standing to welcome the smart world at every smart function, which she still continues, Mrs. William Astor gets some of the hardest comments afloat in the opera house. "Ought to give up youthful airs," "Should dress high," "Should never sit beside that daughter-in-law," "Horribly plain face; should learn a smile or two," were the graceless things that the lady's kindly treated gilded youth said in a high pitched voice between the acts of "Roméo and Juliet" on the opening night.

The Smart Bachelor Set.

The orchestra is more dressy this season, and there are few bouquets. The boxes are so crowded that box people decency will lift a woman anything short of determinedly ugly into the niche of beauty, but that is when she can afford to have any niche she covets lined with gold.

And so you will see the stranger who has read pictorial accounts of the beautiful Miss So-and-so, now the beautiful Mrs. Somebody Else, and whose absorbing doings have been chronicled from the days when she ate with a spoon, drop programme and opera glass and his jaw at the same time when he sets eye on the real article. And sometimes when they are provincial strangers and talk out loud, as they constantly do, it is amusing to hear them. Nobody, however, feels half so much amused as the intimate friends of the beauties themselves. They sometimes join in the disappointed discussion, if in the first case they have not been discovered peering flaws themselves—a thing which the smart male sex on a big night at the opera is very prone to travel round the house and do, for if you really want to hear this brilliant world picked to tatters in truest, rarest fashion you must look to themselves. Follow the gentlemen who steal away from the boxes between the acts, and you'll get more information than you'd dare to look for.

Behind Criticism.

"That figure," remarks a youth whose girder is engrossed with the lady in question, "is as much a piece of workmanship as the tiara on her head. Why, my dear fellows, the same woman makes dresses for my sister as for that woman. Dresses high; throat like the Princess of Wales'. Necessity, my boy. She's a skeleton built over, as you don't see."

This will be the woman whose divine figure is the talk of the town. False teeth, dyed hair, padded hollows, painted complexion and other items of interest are given away in generous confidence in the lobbies and corridors. You're only to keep your ears open on a night like this, when every one is excited and bent on the other one's analysis, and you'll hear perfectly the disillusions that are being said about it. New York's smart men seem to think that when their own eyes are doubly open focusing their women friends (and a large percentage of them are) are that except the individual they are admiring. And, oh, what an exchange of confidence is here! There are some pretty women this season nevertheless—about 2 per cent of what are published.

God has never endowed any statesman or philosopher, nor any body of them, with wisdom enough to frame a system of government that everybody could go off and leave. To pay taxes and to submit to the laws are far short of the whole duty of the citizen.—Lancet in Ladies' Home Journal.

PERSONAL GOSSIP.

Miss Agnes F. Watson of Pittsburgh has been admitted to the bar after a rigid examination.

Dan Andrews of West Rockport, Me., cuts and totes out hop poles, just for fun, and he is 96 years old.

King Massala of Vivi, Kongo, died recently. He leaves a son, who is an office boy at one of the trading posts established by Stanley.

Domias Scott, aged 107, died recently near Shieldsville, Minn. He had no gray hair, and less than a year ago rode horseback to and from town, ten miles.

Henrik Ibsen when he appears at public functions is fairly covered with stars, crosses, collars, pendants and other decorations of all kinds and from all sources.

M. Herthelot, the new French minister, has a fame, entirely apart from his political efforts. In chemical knowledge he ranks among the first of his contemporaries.

The late Marquis of Waterford was, on account of his lameness, allowed to address the house of lords seated. He was, nevertheless, quite a forcible and convincing speaker.

The retiring lord mayor of London, Sir Joseph Reeds, was not granted a vote of thanks by the common council. That body intimated that Sir Joseph had not been retiring enough.

W. Haswell Wilson, president of the Belvidere railroads, a part of the Pennsylvania system, is probably the oldest railway president in the world in active service. He is 86 years old.

It is not generally known that the Prince of Wales is a member of the English bar. He was admitted some 20 years ago and is said to have passed a highly creditable examination.

The most interesting student in the University of Kansas is Martin Van Buren Stevens, who is 70 years old. He expects to be graduated in the spring, after which he will take up the profession of law.

Miss Clara Barton of the Red Cross society held a position in the patent office up to the outbreak of the war. Then she went to the front as a nurse and was appointed to the hospital service by General Benjamin F. Butler.

All through his wandering in Liverpool the African chief Khama has always ridden on the dicky of vehicles, and all attempts to get him inside the carriage have been unavailing, his answer always being the same—"I'm the king, and the king goes first."

TURF TOPICS.

Larabie, 2:12 3/4, will not, in all probability, be raced next season.

The racing season of 1895 in England has been the best in the history of the turf.

L. V. Harlowes, Walnut Hill farm, Lexington, Ky., owns the dam and the full broodmare of Bumps, 2:00 1/2.

William of Requirat, the Futurity winner of 1895, has a fine weanling colt by a and Highness, the Futurity winner of 1894.

Yes, reports regarding Budd Doble's future now include the rumors that he will train for the Russian royal stud, or for Lucky Baldwin, or for J. Malcolm Forbes.

Marcus Daly has lost by death his stallion Tyder All by imported Leanington—Lady Duke. Spokane, the Kentucky Derby winner, was the best horse he ever sired.

W. C. France has sold his Elmwood farm, near Lexington, to W. R. Hughes of that city for $24,000 and does not now own a horse or an acre in the blue grass country.

There is a boom being engineered for Nathan Straus' road horse, brother to Azote. Azote, when interviewed about the matter at Red Oak, said, "He isn't in it with me."

The fine mare Quiz, that Colonel Lawrence Kip exhibited at the New York horse show, and which won the blue ribbon in her class, has been sold to James Gordon Bennett.

The horse among the high steppers at the New York horse show which sold for the highest price was Dash, owned by Joseph Widener of Philadelphia, and he is a strictly trotting bred gelding.

Lizelle, 2:15 1/2, is in foal to her full brother, Parole, 2:16. It would be a pity if the produce developed into a record breaker, for there could be no discussion as to which family was entitled to the credit.—Horseman.

ODDS AND ENDS.

The polar currents contain less salt than those of the equator.

China is soon to establish a foreign university at Tien-sin, where mechanical and scientific instruction will be given by foreign professors.

The only woman called madam by the Arabians is the Virgin Mary. They refuse that mark of respect even to Fatima, the daughter of Mohammed.

It is said that a book on the Virgin written by Pope Leo XIII when he was Cardinal Pucci was placed on the Index Expurgatorius by Pius IX, and that it is there yet.

This is a great apple year. The American crop is estimated at 10,000,000 barrels, which beats the record by 2,000,000. Prices average $2 a barrel, which is about one-half last year's price.

New York butter dealers are complaining of dishonest farmers who soak their butter tubs in water. A spruce-wood tub holding 100 pounds of butter will absorb six pounds of water in a few hours, and the farmer gets the price of good butter for the moisture.

D. A. FRANK & CO.

REV. W. E. THOMAS, Pastor of First Presbyterian Church,

In the course of his Sunday morning sermon took occasion to say that "Christian merchants should practice telling the truth in their advertisements." So say we. Our sentiments to a dot. We founded our business on this principle and have succeeded. No one knows better than we the disagreeable character of deceitful advertising. We come in contact with it and meeting it with a shower of truths that challenge investigation at all times.

Our Opening (Our Christmas Inaugural)

Was a marked success. The crowds came like a flood, they enjoyed the musical treat, they admired the holiday goods, they bought delightedly. It could not have been better. Now watch the small competitors follow the example.

A STORY OF FINE SILKS:

A French manufacturer this year designed a great many new patterns in medium and large brocaded silks--black gros grains with satin figures. Paris raved and bought, and a few were imported here. They sold in New York at $3 to $8 per yard. A cunning American manufacturer saw his opportunity and immediately copied the patterns. The American copies sold in the cities more rapidly than they could be made. In August our buyer, while in New York, contracted a quantity of these patterns to be delivered at the earliest possible day. They began coming, piece at a time, some pieces lasted three days, others were sold the first day in. When in New York again, last month, our buyer plied all his persuasive powers for another lot and secured six pieces; they came and sold rapidly.

Ten pieces more came today. Tonight and Tuesday is the only time to see the full assortment. Some may last longer, but all won't. Caution now, don't wait a day, for the opportunity will be gone. Let not the day pass without availing yourself of this rare chance.

Our Holiday Dept. Third Floor--Take Elevator.

It's open in full force, and pleasing the crowds.

Jewelry and Silverware

Are here in quantity. You hear talk from jewelers about "dry goods jewelry." There is a difference--in the price. We sell it cheaper. We invite your examination. We can't afford to sell you goods that are not just right, and we won't. These goods are all right.

LAUGHED AT THE BURGLAR.

A Marion Man Thought It Funny That a Burglar Should Call on Him.

When a STAR scribe unloaded his stereotyped request for news on Col. G. B. Christian, this morning, the Colonel told the following rather unusual story:

"Our engineer came to me one recent morning with his face covered with the soot of his calling. But there was a clean streak down each cheek and the streak was the pathway of tears. From his broken words I finally discovered that they were tears of laughter and not of sorrow. He managed to tell me that in the night time his wife awakened him with the information that a burglar was at the door, and there, sure enough, by the dim light they watched the burglar's auger bore two holes about the lock, and then the engineer and his wife sat up in bed and as he thought of his poverty and that chap boring through the door, he laughed and laughed until tears came and his wife had to hold him up, and then the bold burglar heard the awful sounds and he fled."

COMMON PLAS COURT.

Ada Nash, by her attorney, F. E. Guthery, today filed in the circuit court her petition in error against the township trustees of Bowling Green township, Marion county, Ohio, W. A. Sager, B. F. Sager and J. D. Sager, defendants in error.

The jury came in Monday evening about 4 o'clock in the case of the City of Marion against Thomas Thompson and others.

The verdict allowed to T. A. Thompson and Isabella Thompson for land taken $275; to Lizzie Lape DeWitt Veon and C. W. Veon for land taken $350 and $150 damages; and to Horatio Hoyle $500 for land taken and $250 damages.

THE CITY IN BRIEF.

Company G was out on the streets last night, drilling.

The 'freemove people are here showing designs to the building committee of the Presbyterian church.

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Mouser, of east Center street, burned his hand very badly Sunday morning, by placing it on a hot stove.

Arthur Kling has his extra hustle on himself these days, having become assistant to Henry B. Hane as secretary of the Electric Light company. Mr. Kling is handling the books.

The Marion Electric Light and Power company has made a welcome reduction in its rates. The incandescent service is now being provided at a reduction of 20 per cent. on the old rate.

Monday afternoon in rounding the corner to Fairground street, car No. 6 broke a flange on one of its wheels and it is now stalled for repairs. The north and south service is thus reduced to two cars.

A letter of credit has been received by a local bank from J. Pierpoint Morgan authorizing the payment of any draft up to a certain amount, said to be $10,000, in the case of Hoffman against the N. Y., P. and O. and others.

The attachment in the case of Mrs. Anna Wright against Chas. Kidd for room rent to the amount of $25.50 was dismissed in 'Squire McKinley's court today, and the case will be tried before a jury tonight at 7 o'clock on its merits.

Otto Cull, an employee of the Huber works, caught one of his fingers in the machine he was operating this forenoon, shortly before the noon hour. The young man will have a few weeks of enforced idleness. He will lose the finger.

Monday's STAR said that "Eugene Bowen" is preparing to make the readjustment of street paving assessments. Major Bowen, the city engineer, was meant. If anybody was misled by the error they may compose their minds in peace.

Last evening about fifteen of the friends of Mrs. May Heckler called at her home on Cherry street and reminded her of her 48th birthday. After a very social chat and refreshments, Mrs. Heckler was made the recipient of several handsome and valuable presents.

S. S. Fox today began suit in the court of 'Squire Osburn to recover a bill of forty dollars from W. T. Chambers and wife. Fox placed a roof on the barn of Chambers and now Chambers claims it was not according to contract and refuses to pay for the same, and brings a counter claim of ten dollars.

Sam Zeig told the STAR his side of the story of the fight in the Bender saloon Saturday night. Clark had made believe that he was inveigled into the saloon so that Zeig could whip him. Zeig denies this and also denies that he kicked the man, and says that Clark went to the saloon by an agreement of his own to play a game of cards with one dollar as the stake, and there you are.

The Kenton News pays this deserved compliment to a Marion girl: "Many of Kenton's young people are acquainted with Miss Joe Harsberger, of Marion, a most charming and accomplished young lady of our sister city. She is to be married on Dec. 18th to W. C. Franz, of Bucyrus, who is an employee at the T. and O. C. office. Miss Harsberger is one of Marion's prettiest girls."

There are now but slight hopes entertained for the recovery of the aged Mrs. Eliza Beerbower. She has been ill for some time and was getting along fairly well until Monday night when she got up after going to bed, and fell, striking a door. Her illness and the injury sustained by the fall will very likely prove fatal. Dr. O. W. Weeks was called to attend the injuries of the lady, and is of the opinion that she will hardly live through the night.

C. W. Romoser returned Monday evening from Cleveland, where he had twenty-five birds on exhibition at the poultry show. Mr. Romoser exhibited Plymouth Rocks and he found competition in this class livelier than in all others. The result, however, was gratifying, inasmuch as he secured eight premiums out of the fifteen offered. His awards were 1st and 4th on pen, 1st, 3d and 4th on pullet, 2d on hen, 2d on cock and 2d, 3d and 4th on cockerel.
